

Maurelli Group Becomes Official Lamberet Distributor A New Strategic Partnership for the Future of Temperature- Controlled Logistics in Italy

Casoria (Naples), April 2026 – Maurelli Group announces a new strategic partnership with Lamberet, the French leader in temperature-controlled transport and one of Europe’s leading manufacturers of cold chain solutions.

Under the agreement, Maurelli Group will act as official distributor in Italy for all spare parts categories across the entire Lamberet product range, further strengthening the Group’s presence in the rapidly growing temperature-controlled transport segment.

Thanks to this collaboration, Maurelli is expanding its scope of operations by including solutions dedicated to refrigerated transport within its portfolio of distributed spare parts and components, with the aim of providing an increasingly comprehensive and specialized service to operators in the automotive sector.

A Synergy for Italy’s Cold Chain

Temperature-controlled transport is now a key segment for industries such as food, pharmaceuticals and advanced logistics, increasingly driven by technological innovation. This partnership fits into this context, combining Lamberet’s excellence in the development of refrigerated solutions with Maurelli Group’s well-established expertise in the automotive sector.

Lamberet offers one of the broadest and most comprehensive product ranges on the market, with solutions covering the entire spectrum of refrigerated transport: from light commercial vehicles to rigid trucks and semi-trailers. This collaboration enables Maurelli to expand its offering into this segment as well, further strengthening its ability to meet the needs of an increasingly specialized market.

Availability and Customer-Centric Proximity

The partnership provides for the distribution of Lamberet spare parts across the entire Italian territory through the Maurelli Group network, which includes over 45 points of sale and 5 logistics hubs, ensuring availability of spare parts at all branches. This enables operators to gain immediate access to components for the entire Lamberet range, reducing lead times and simplifying maintenance activities.

For Lamberet, the collaboration represents a strengthening of its presence in the Italian market, thanks to a well-structured partner capable of ensuring customer proximity and delivering efficient, continuous service.
